LEADERSHIP GIVING

LIVE UNITED

Leadership Society ($1,000 - $9,999)

Leadership Society members are generous donors to United Way of Lancaster County who give between $1,000 and $9,999. They are recognized as Lancaster County's philanthropic role models. When investors become Leadership Society members, they make a powerful statement about their desire to care for and strengthen our community.

Leadership Society members are listed in an annual leadership giving report, are invited to United Way's annual leadership giving reception, and receive regular updates across the year about how their gifts are changing lives.

Tocqueville Society ($10,000 and more)

Tocqueville Society is a very special group of committed philanthropists around the world who invest at least $10,000 annually in their United Ways. We founded our Society in 1993 to afford leading, local contributors a vehicle to deepen their understanding of our community's needs and connect with other philanthropists to make change happen in Lancaster County. Our nearly 60 Tocqueville Society members invest close to $662,000 annually in our community.

Tocqueville Society members enjoy year-round activities. Members are featured in an annual leadership giving report and invited to United Way's annual leadership giving reception.

Tocqueville Society Step-Up

Tocqueville Society Step-Up members are recognized as full members as soon as they enter the Step-Up program. Step-Up members will also enjoy all Tocqueville Society benefits by committing to a Tocqueville Society level within four years.

Million Dollar Roundtable ($1 million and more)

United Way offers a unique opportunity for philanthropists who invest $1 million and more in bold change for Lancaster County. This very special group of philanthropists is part of a key leadership force across the globe.

In addition to opportunities for international recognition, learning, and networking, Million Dollar Roundtable members inspire all of United Way of Lancaster County's leadership givers. They are invited to all leadership giving activities, featured in an annual leadership giving report and honorary hosts of our annual leadership giving reception.

Women United

United Way of Lancaster County's Women United has raised more than $1 million since its founding more than 10 years ago. Setting an example for the community and the next generation of women philanthropists, this group recognizes and encourages philanthropy and leadership by women who invest $500 or $1,000, or more, annually. Members historically direct these investments to support impactful work that promotes women and children's education, financial stability and health.

In addition to their philanthropy, Women United members are offered a number of programs and activities throughout the year. Members are also listed in an annual leadership giving report and invited to United Way's annual leadership giving reception.

Emerging Leaders Society

Lancaster County's future rests in the hands of today's Emerging Leaders Society. These philanthropists, age 40 and under, have actively engaged in their community by investing $250 or more as an individual or $500 or more as a household in United Way of Lancaster County.

Emerging Leaders are listed in an annual leadership giving report, are invited to United Way's annual leadership giving reception, networking events and volunteer opportunities.

Legacy Society

Legacy Society members are an important group of individuals and couples who have included United Way of Lancaster County in their estate plans. These forward-thinking philanthropists pay forward some of their success by investing in a nonprofit organization that has stood the test of time and demonstrated its ability to remain relevant. A lifetime gift to United Way is an investment in making great change happen for decades to come.

Legacy Society members are hosted at an annual reception. Members are also listed in an annual leadership giving report and invited to United Way's annual leadership giving reception.
